Training Language, Literacy and Numeracy Teachers: A European Perspective

Conference
22-23 September 2005
Lewisham College
London

The Training Basic Skills Teachers project aims to develop and share, on a European scale, learner-centred and innovative good practice in the training of new and serving basic skills teachers. Basic skills encompasses adult literacy, numeracy and national language learning.

The project partners are four European educational institutions - two vocational training institutions delivering basic skills training and two universities training teachers. They are all involved in delivering basic skills training and teacher training. With the support of the European Union's Socrates Comenius programme they worked together to develop guidelines and training materials.

The partners are:

- Lewisham College in London, United Kingdom - coordinator
- Masaryk University in Brno, Czech Republic
- University of Rostock in Rostock, Germany
- IAL FVG (Friuli Venezia Giulia) in Pordenone, Italy

The stages of the project:

- Researching best practice in teacher training
- Sharing best practice across European partner countries
- Developing guidelines for best practice in teacher training
- Developing and exchanging materials for the training of teachers

Basic skills teaching is now a European wide topic of interest. The final stage of the project is a conference on 22/23 September 2005, where partners will share the insights gained with a wide European audience.

We are looking for committed educators willing to share their own insights and experiences into teacher training in a national and international forum. Papers and other contributions are welcome.

- The conference is free - supported by the Socrates Comenius programme
- Accommodation and travel will be the responsibility of participants
- Lewisham College can help with finding accommodation
